

Jack Brady

Privacy Notice

How I use your information

Please read the following information carefully. This privacy notice contains information about the information collected, stored, and otherwise processed about you, and the reasons for the processing. It also tells you with whom I share this information, your rights, and how to contact me in the event you need further information.

- 1. Who am I?
- 2. The information that I may hold
- 3. Other people that I may provide information to
- 4. Marketing
- 5. Public interest processing
- 6. Legitimate Interests
- 7. Withdrawal of consent
- 8. Your rights
- 9. Complaints

1. Who am I?

My name is Jack Brady. I am a pupil barrister practising at Gough Square Chambers. When I act as a pupil barrister, I am the controller of certain information.

If you want to contact me, you can:

- Telephone me on 0207 353 0924 (please ask for Jack Brady)
- Email me at jack.brady@goughsq.co.uk
- Write to me at Jack Brady, Gough Square Chambers, London EC4A 3DE;
- If you use the document exchange (DX) you can write to me at Jack Brady, Gough Square Chambers, DX 476 London Chancery Lane

2. The information that I may hold

I hold the following different types of personal information:

Client Information
The type of information that I hold	If you are a client, I need information about you so that I can work on your case. The information that I hold will vary from case to case, but may include: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Name and contact details;• Family details, such as the name of your relatives or other information about them;• Lifestyle and social circumstances details;• Financial details, such as salary;• Education, training and employment details;• Details about any criminal convictions that you may have; and/or• Sensitive personal information about you. This can include information about your health, race or ethnic origin, political opinions, religious, philosophical or other beliefs, trade union membership, sex life or sexual orientation, genetic data, or biometric data.

Why I hold it	I use this information: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • so that I can work on your case; • for legal and regulatory purposes, for example to show that I have worked on your case appropriately, to respond to a complaint, or to carry out money laundering checks; • to keep accountancy records and for office administration; • to check for potential conflicts of interest; • to be able to carry on my practice as a pupil barrister; and/or • for marketing and career purposes.
---------------	--

Why I am allowed to use the information	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Consent – when you provide this information to me, you consent for me to work on your case. • Contract – if you are a professional access client then I need this information to perform the contract between us. • Legal obligations – I may have legal and regulatory obligations to use your information, for example to check for money laundering. • Legitimate interest – I have a legitimate interest in being able to practise as a pupil barrister. • Public interest – there is a public interest in the provision of legal services, the administration of justice, and acting or providing advice in respect of actual or potential legal claims. Where I process sensitive personal information, I only do so on the basis of consent or public interest, i.e., the administration of justice. Where I process information about criminal convictions, I only rely on consent or public interest, i.e., the administration of justice and actual or potential legal claims.
---	--

Who I will share the information with	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Some of your information is protected by legal professional privilege, which means that I cannot share it without your consent unless it becomes public. As a pupil barrister, I have an obligation to keep your information confidential. • I may share the names of my cases with my accountant. • See section 3 below for who else I may share your information with.
How long I will hold the information for	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • I will keep details of case names for the duration of my practice, so that I can carry out conflict checks. • I may keep contact details for the duration of my practice, for marketing purposes (although, if you ask me not to, I shall delete them when I no longer need them for other purposes). • After a case has finished, I will normally either confidentially destroy or return paper documents to either you or your solicitor. I will keep any electronic records, including emails, for up to 8 years after the end of the case. • If there is a dispute between us, for example you have not paid or you have made a complaint, then I may keep that information for longer, for up to 3 years until the dispute has finally been resolved. • I have a legal obligation to keep information about any money laundering checks until 5 years after the end of the transaction or our relationship, whichever is longer.

How I obtain the information	I may obtain information about you from the following sources: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • From you, via my instructions • From your solicitor • From the bar pro bono unit • Via my Chambers (for example when they send me papers to consider or to quote for) • From other parties in the case, and their legal advisors, for example if they put in a witness statement about you • From other people acting on your behalf, for example a friend or family member if you authorise them to deal with me • From publicly available sources, such as the press or public registers • From courts or other tribunals
-------------------------------------	--

Other Case Information
The type of information that I hold	As part of providing legal advice to my clients, I will need to hold information about other people who are not my clients. This may include witnesses, experts, other parties to the litigation or other people involved in the case. The type of information that I hold will vary from case to case but may include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • names and contact details; • family details, such as the name of your relatives or other information about them; • lifestyle and social circumstances details; • financial details, such as salary;

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • education, training, and employment details; • details about any criminal convictions that you may have; and/or • sensitive personal information about you, which may include information about your health, race or ethnic origin, political opinions, religious, philosophical or other beliefs, trade union membership, sex life or sexual orientation, genetic data, or biometric data
--	---

Why I hold it	I use this information: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • so that I can work on my client’s case; • for legal and regulatory purposes, for example to show that I have worked on the case appropriately or to respond to a complaint; • for office administration; • to check for potential conflicts of interest; • to be able to carry on my practice as a pupil barrister; and/or • for marketing purposes.
---------------	--

Why I am allowed to use the information	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Legal obligations – I may have legal and regulatory obligations to use your information, for example to show that I have a copy of the case papers in public access cases. • Legitimate interest – I have a legitimate interest in being able to practise as a pupil barrister. • Public interest – there is a public interest in the provision of legal services, the administration of justice, and in acting or providing advice in respect of actual or potential legal claims. Where I process sensitive personal information, I only do so on the basis of consent or public interest, i.e., the administration of justice. Where I process information about criminal convictions, I only rely on consent or public interest, i.e., the administration of justice and actual or potential legal claims.
---	--

Who I will share the information with	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • I may share the names of my cases with my accountant. • See section 3 below for who else I may share your information with.

How long I will hold the information for	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • I will keep details of case names for the duration of my practice, so that I can carry out conflict checks. • I may keep contact details for the duration of my practice, for marketing purposes (although, if you ask me not to, I shall delete them when I no longer need them for other purposes). • After a case has finished, I will normally either confidentially destroy or return paper documents to either my client or my instructing solicitor. I will keep any electronic records, including emails, for up to 8 years after the end of the case. • If there is a dispute between us, for example you have made a complaint, then I may keep that information for longer, for up to 3 years until the dispute has finally been resolved.
--	--

How I obtain the information	I may obtain information about you from the following sources: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • From my client or my solicitor • From the bar pro bono unit • Via my Chambers (for example when they send me papers to consider or to quote for) • From other parties in the case, and their legal advisors, for example if they put in a witness statement about you • From publicly available sources, such as the press or public registers • From courts or other tribunals
------------------------------	--

Other Professional Contacts and Third-Party Data
The type of information that I hold	I will have the details for other professional contacts as part of being a practising pupil barrister. This may include other barristers, members of my Chambers, clerks (both mine and for other barristers), judges, suppliers of professional services (such as accountants, lawyers, typists, or IT professionals), pupils, mini pupils, and applicants for jobs or membership of Chambers. Normally the only information I will hold about such individuals will be name(s) and contact details. However, in the case of members of my Chambers, the clerks or employees of my Chambers or others, or applicants for mini-pupillage, pupillage, membership of Chambers or employment positions in Chambers, this may include financial details, employment history, employment records, and (if you choose to give them to me) sensitive personal information and information about criminal convictions.

	If you are identified in a law report that I have a copy of then I may hold any information about you that is referred to in that law report. If I write a law report, then I may use information that is disclosed in the Judgment.
Why I hold it	I use hold this information so that I can practise as a pupil barrister.
Why I am allowed to use the information	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Consent – if you provide me with your details then you consent to me having them. • Contract – if I have a contract with you then I will need the information for the purposes of preparing for or carrying out that contract. • Legitimate interest – I have a legitimate interest in being able to practise as a pupil barrister. • Public interest – there is a public interest in the administration of justice, which includes the production of law reports. Where I hold sensitive personal information or information about criminal convictions, I rely on your consent or – in the case of a law report – on the public interest of law reporting.

Who I will share the information with	See sections 2 and 3 for who I may share this information with.
How long I will hold the information for	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • I may keep contact details, information about my clerks, and information about employees in other chambers or people who work in my Chambers for the duration of my practice. • I may keep any information about applications for up to 6 months from the date of the application. • I will keep information in law reports for the duration of my practice.
How I obtain the information	I may obtain the information from: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • You, where you choose to give it to me • Somebody else on your behalf: a court clerk may provide me with a judge's email address, for example • Other professional contacts, who may forward me your contact details if they think that you may be able to provide a service to me, for example • My solicitors or other legal professionals, who may provide me with your contact details, for example if you are a solicitor on the other side of a case on which I am working • Other publicly available sources such as your web page, a telephone directory, or a court judgement in which you are identified • My Chambers: a copy of a CV or application to join my Chambers may be provided, for example

3. Other people that I may provide information to

In addition to the information set out in section 2, I may also share information with the following people.

My Chambers, my clerks, and other support staff

I may share information with my Chambers and with my clerks so that I can practise as a pupil barrister. For example, my clerks may file a skeleton argument on my behalf which contains your personal information. I may use a Chambers typist or other support staff employed or acting for Chambers. I may also share your information with a pupil or mini-pupil. Whenever I share information with any of these people I shall always do so on the grounds that it is confidential.

Legal Professionals and other people connected to a case

If your information is relevant to my case, I may have to share it with other people. For example, I may need to share your information with my solicitor or my client, or somebody acting on their behalf. I may also need to share your information with other legal professionals, such as the Judge, court clerks, pupils, or another barrister. An example would be sending them a skeleton argument which contains personal information about you in it.

IT support

I use the following third-party suppliers to help me practise. These suppliers may therefore have access to your information:

- My Chambers uses a hosted system, operated by Opus 2 International Limited. They store and operate my emails, diary, and can host all my electronic documents including case papers.
- I may process PDFs using Adobe and PDF Expert. This may include court bundles sent to me on PDF or law reports.

These suppliers sometimes operate outside of the UK and the EU. In the case of Adobe and PDF Expert, I rely on Privacy Shield (acknowledged by the EU Commission that the provider has adequate security provisions in place) and Data Privacy Framework arrangements. In the case of Opus 2 International Limited, I have considered their security arrangements and believe them to be adequate. Please contact me if you would like information about these security arrangements.

Legal and regulatory bodies

I am regulated by the Bar Standards Board, who may require access to information that I hold. I may also have to share your information with other regulators – the Information Commissioner’s Office, for example – or to other bodies that have a legal right to obtain it, such as the police.

Other professional purposes

If I apply to another chambers, or I apply to be a King’s Counsel or a judge or for another professional position, I may refer to past cases that I have been involved in as part of that application.

I may also publicise cases that I have been involved in with legal directories, or on my Chambers’ website, but I will always make sure that I do not divulge anything that is confidential (or if I do so that it is held on terms that are confidential).

There may be other business associates, professional advisors, or trade bodies such as the Bar Council to whom I need to disclose your information during my practice.

Legal advice and disputes

I may need to share your information with my legal advisors. If there is a dispute between us or you make a complaint (or a third party makes a complaint or raises a dispute that involves you), I may also need to share your information with any person adjudicating on that dispute or complaint such as a court or an ombudsman.

At your request

There may be circumstances where you ask me to disclose your information to somebody: you might ask me for a reference, for example.

4. Marketing

Occasionally either my Chambers or I host events including, but not limited to, giving training sessions or providing legal updates that may be of interest to you. I may use your personal information to contact you about such events, but I will only do so where:

- I have your express consent; or
- You are a client or a solicitor to whom I have provided services and you have not asked me not to contact you.

If you do not wish to receive such communications, please just let me know.

5. Public interest processing

Where I have relied on the public interest to use any of your information, you can object to me doing so. See the 'right to object' in section 10 below.

6. Legitimate Interests

Where I have referred to having a legitimate interest to use any of your information then I have balanced my legitimate interest against your rights and interests to have your information protected. If you would like details about how I have done this, please contact me. You may also object to me processing the information in this way – see the 'right to object' in section 10 below.

7. Withdrawal of consent

Where I rely on your consent to use your information, you may withdraw that consent at any time by contacting me using the details in section 1 above. I shall then stop using your information unless there is another applicable reason for which I can use it set out in section 2 above. The withdrawal of consent shall not affect the lawfulness of any use of the information that occurred prior to the withdrawal of consent.

Please note that if you are a client and you withdraw your consent for me to use your information then I may not be able to continue to work on your case.

8. Your rights

If I hold information about you then you have the following rights in respect of my use of that information:

- A right of access to your information and to details about how I use your information;
- A right to rectification of inaccurate information;
- A right to have information erased (a right to be forgotten);
- A right to restrict the use that I can make of your information;
- A right to information portability; and
- A right to object to the processing of your information.

To exercise any of these rights, please contact me using the details in section 1 above. You can find more detail about these rights below.

I will comply with any of these rights as soon as possible and in any event no later than one month from the request (although if the request is complex or there are numerous requests, I may extend this by up to two further months).

I will not charge for any request unless it is manifestly unfounded or excessive (for example because it is repetitive). If a request is manifestly unfounded or excessive then I will either charge my reasonable administrative costs to comply with it or I will tell you that I am not going to comply because it is manifestly unfounded or excessive.

Access to information

You may request access to the information that I hold about you together with information about the purposes for which I use that information, the type of information I hold, to whom I disclose it, and the length of time for which I hold it. This is commonly referred to as a subject access request. However, I do not have to disclose any information which is subject to legal professional privilege or may identify another person.

Right to rectification

If I hold any inaccurate information about you, please let me know as soon as possible and I will correct it. You may also request that I supplement any incomplete information that I hold about you.

If I rectify or supplement any information that I hold about you then I will let any third parties to whom I have provided this information know unless this is impossible or disproportionate. If you ask me to I will tell you to whom I have disclosed this information.

Right to erasure

You can ask that I erase the information that I hold about you in the following circumstances:

- I no longer need to keep it for the purposes for which it was collected or used
- My only basis to process it is your consent and you withdraw that consent
- You object to my use of the information and I do not have any overriding legitimate grounds to continue using the information
- I am using the information unlawfully
- I have to erase it in order to comply with a legal obligations

If you wish to have information about you erased, please contact me and I will consider the request. However, there are some circumstances when I do not need to comply with such a request, for example if I need the information for the establishment exercise or defence of legal claims, or if its use is in the public interest.

If I erase any information that I hold about you then I will let any third parties to whom I have provided this information know unless impossible or disproportionate to do so. If you ask me to tell you to whom I have disclosed this information then I will.

Right to data portability

Where my processing of your information is based on consent and the processing is carried out by automated means then you have the right to have that information provided to you in a commonly used format, provided that this is technically feasible.

Right to restrict processing

You can ask that I restrict how I use your information in the following circumstances:

- You have made a request for rectification or to supplement inaccurate information. You can ask that I restrict your processing while I deal with your request

- The use of the information is unlawful, but you ask that I restrict my use of the information rather than delete it
- I no longer need to use it, but you want me to keep it so that you can use it for a legal claim

In these circumstances I will stop using your information (although I may still store it) unless: you consent to its use; I need it for legal claims; I need to use it to protect another person; or where there is an important public interest in using it. For example, I may still process information if I need it to work on a case.

If I restrict my use of any information that I hold about you then I will let any third parties to whom I have provided this information know unless doing so is impossible or disproportionate. If you ask me to, I will tell you to whom I have disclosed this information.

Right to object

You have the right to object to me using your information where I base my use on either it being in the public interest or it being for legitimate interests (see section 2 above). If you do object and I have no other basis to process it, I can only continue to process it if I can demonstrate that I have compelling grounds to do so which override your interests. An example might be that I need it for legal claims.

9. Complaints

My use of information is regulated by the Information Commissioner. If you would like to complain about me, you can contact the Information Commissioner's Office on 0303 123 1113. More information about your right to complain can be found at www.ico.org.uk.